HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINE

Medical Treatment is an Art and a Science. For centuries we have experimented with a number of modalities, starting with the 5000 years old Indian Ayurvedic Medicine, Chinese Traditional Medicine, followed by the treatment with natural substances used in Europe & Middle East.

During the 18th century, bloodletting became the norm, killing millions all over the world, including our first President, George Washington, who died on December 17, 1799, after a simple soar-throat. He believed in, and agreed with the White House team of doctors' to draining an estimated 5 to 7 pints of his blood. He died 3-days later.

Millions around the world, including doctors, were against bloodletting. One of them, Dr. Samuel Hahnemann, a German Physician developed the scientific theory of 'Similia Similibus Curantur' – meaning 'Like is cured by like' or that a disease may be cured by something that can cause similar symptoms. He called his new system – Homeopathic Medicine in 1796, the basic concept of which is to stimulate the human body to strengthen its own immune system, to fight the disease.

Perhaps it was this theory that lead British Physician Edward Jenner to come up with the idea of a 'Vaccine' giving the exudates and secretions from a cowpox pustule on May 14, 1796, thus starting a whole new concept of prevention or cure for deadly diseases.

The concept of HOMEOPATHIC MEDICAL SYSTEM spread very quickly all over the world. By 1892, the United States had over four hundred state and county Homeopathic Associations and by 1912 there were 195 Homeopathic Hospitals, nine of which had more than one hundred beds.

The Germ Theory of French Scientist, Louis Pasteur and development of Penicillin in the 19th century once again changed the spectrum. The modern medicine, Allopathic Medicine, based on double-blind scientific studies and physio-chemical hypotheses has done a tremendous job, but its overwhelming side-affects have created enormous amount of new & chronic health problems at a prohibitively expensive economic and social cost.

Homeopathy seeks to cure in accordance with Natural Laws of Healing, and uses medicine made from natural substances, animals, vegetables, herbs & minerals. Homeopathy treats the whole person, recognizing the physical, mental and spiritual health, cultural & genetic predisposition and environmental influences. The curative remedies are based on the underlying cause and not necessarily symptoms. Homeopathy also offers nutritional, psychological, social & environmental guidelines to prevent disease or to avoid acute illnesses from progressing into chronic conditions.

All courses, including Continuing Medical Education programs, are available on-line. Labs and Clinical Training however must be completed at the school and/or at designated facility. New classes start in January, April, July and October. Competency-Based accelerated programs, exemptions for prior-studies, scholarships, student loans and easy monthly payment facilities are available. Additional non-credit courses can be had for as little as $5.00 an hour, subject to availability.
